Friday

August 14, 2015

6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

Eleven Apache Scouts received the U.S. military's highest award of valor during the late 19th century. Find out what services they performed for the Army and the risks involved. What did the phrase "gallantry in action" actually mean to these scouts and their commanders in frontier Arizona? Spend the evening at the Pioneer Museum reflecting on the lives of these local heroes of old Arizona.

Guest speaker Cyndy Palcich spent her teaching career around the Southwest and particularly on the Navajo and Apache reservations.
