BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

Isabella Greenway, 1886-1953.

Isabella Greenway, Arizona congresswoman, was born in Boone County, Kentucky on March 22, 1886. She was the daughter of Tilden Selmes and Martha ("Patty") Flandrau Selmes. Her father died in 1895 and for the next five years, Isabella and her mother lived at various times with her maternal grandfather in St. Paul, Minnesota and with her great-aunt Julia Dinsmore in Boone County, Kentucky. In 1901, Isabella moved with her mother to New York City, where she attended Spence School and Miss Chapin's School. She was a bridesmaid at the wedding of her school friend, Eleanor Roosevelt to Franklin Delano Roosevelt on March 17, 1905.

On July 15, 1905, Isabella married Robert Harry Munro Ferguson (1868-1922), a native of Scotland and a former Rough Rider with Theodore Roosevelt. They had two children, Martha Ferguson Breasted (1906-1995) and Robert Munro Ferguson (1908-1984). When Ferguson developed tuberculosis in 1908, Isabella moved the family for his health first to Saranac Lake, New York (1908-1910), then to Silver City, New Mexico (1910-1913), and finally, to a homestead in Tyrone, New Mexico (1914-1922). They also owned a home in Santa Barbara, California (1919-1922) where the children attended school.

In November 1922, Munro Ferguson died and her mother died the following July. On November 4, 1923, Isabella married John Campbell Greenway, who was a friend of Ferguson and whom she had known for many years. Their son, John Selmes Greenway, was born on October 11, 1924. In January 1925, they built a home in Ajo, Arizona and Greenway retired from the Calumet and Arizona Mining Company in May of that year. Following complications from gall bladder surgery, Greenway died in January 1926.

In 1927, Isabella purchased the Quarter Circle Double X Ranch in Williams, Arizona. The ranch remained in the family until its sale in 1977. Also in 1927, Isabella moved to Tucson and established the Arizona Hut to provide employment opportunities for war veterans. The Hut, which manufactured and sold furniture, was unsuccessful due to the Depression. In 1930, with proceeds from the sale of her copper stock, Isabella built the Arizona Inn, a hotel in Tucson, furnishing it with products produced at the Hut.

Isabella launched her political career in 1928 when she was elected Democratic National Committeewoman for Arizona. She was re-elected in 1932. In 1933, Congressman Lewis W. Douglas resigned to become Director of the Federal Budget and Isabella won the special election to fill his seat in Congress. She was re-elected in 1934, but chose not to run in 1936.

On April 22, 1939, Isabella married Harry Orland King (1890-1976), president of the Institute of Applied Econometrics and deputy National Recovery Act administrator with whom she had worked in while in Congress to write the copper code. She divided her time among residences in New York City, Fairfield, Connecticut and Tucson. During World War II, she was national chairwoman of the American Women's Voluntary Service and the American Arbitration Association.

After a year-long series of heart attacks, Isabella Greenway died on December 18, 1953 at her home in Tucson. She was buried at the family cemetery at Dinsmore Farm in Kentucky.

John Campbell Greenway, 1872-1926.

John Campbell Greenway, mining engineer and Rough Rider in the Spanish American War, was born on July 6, 1872 in Huntsville, Alabama. The son of Gilbert Christian Greenway (1849-1912) and Alice White Greenway (d. 1912), he attended school in Arkansas and in Virginia. He received a Ph.D. in engineering from Yale University in 1895, where he was a noted football athlete and president of his class.

He began his mining career in 1895 working for the Carnegie Steel Company in Duquesne, Pennsylvania. He enlisted in the United States Volunteer Cavalry (Roosevelt's Rough Riders) during the Spanish-American War. He was promoted from private to first lieutenant for his bravery in the Battle of San Juan Hill. His involvement with the Rough Riders strongly influenced him and he kept up correspondence with his fellow Rough Riders for the rest of his life.

In 1899, he resumed his mining career as the Assistant Superintendent of Mines at Ishpeming, Michigan for the U. S. Steel Corporation. In 1905, he was named General Superintendent of the Oliver Iron Mining Company at the Mesabe Range in Minnesota. In July 1910, he moved to Bisbee, Arizona where he became General Manager of the Calumet & Arizona Copper Company, General Manager of the New Cornelia Copper Company, Vice President and General Manager of the Cornelia & Gila Bend Railway, and Vice-President of the Ahumada Lead Company.

Greenway was instrumental in the development of five mining communities: Coleraine (1906), Marble (1908), and Taconite (1905) in Minnesota, Ajo, Arizona (1911) and Los Lamentos, Chihuahua, Mexico (1922), where the Ahumada and Erupcion mining companies are located. He was also involved in the power dam project at Diamond Creek on the Colorado River (1922).

In October 1917, Greenway was commissioned a major in the Corps of Engineers, 1st and 26th Divisions, and was assigned to France. Later, he became Lt. Col. of the 101st infantry, 26th division. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and several French decorations for bravery. Greenway became a Brigadier General in the Army Reserves following World War I.

On November 4, 1923, Greenway married Isabella Selmes Munro Ferguson, the widow of his friend Robert H. Munro Ferguson. Their son, John Selmes Greenway, was born on October 11, 1924. They lived alternately in Bisbee, Santa Barbara and in Ajo, Arizona where Greenway built a home in January 1925.

Politically, Greenway was a staunch supporter of Theodore Roosevelt. He was active in the Progressive Party during the teens, and then switched to the Republican Party and eventually to the Democratic Party. Greenway's name was placed in nomination for vice-president at the Democratic National Convention in June 1924.

On May 27, 1925, Greenway retired as general manager of Calumet & Arizona Mining Company. That fall, he suffered a gall bladder attack. On January 15, 1926, he underwent elective surgery in New York, but died of a blood clot on January 19. He was buried in Ajo, Arizona. On May 24, 1930, a statue of Greenway was unveiled at Statuary Hall, Capitol Building in Washington, D. C.

Robert Harry Munro Ferguson, 1868-1922.

Robert Munro Ferguson, Rough Rider and first husband of Isabella Greenway, was born on June 8, 1868 at Assynt, Raith, Scotland. He was the son of Col. Robert Munro Ferguson and Emma Munro Ferguson. His grandfather was one of the founders of the Black Watch. His brother Ronald Crawford Munro Ferguson (1860?-1934) was Governor General of Australia and a member of the British Parliament for thirty years.

Robert Munro Ferguson was an early friend of Theodore Roosevelt and his sister, Anna Roosevelt Cowles. He was a hunting companion of Roosevelt in Wyoming in 1891. Roosevelt asked him to be godfather for his youngest daughter, Edith Roosevelt Derby. In the fall of 1893, Robert Munro Ferguson was appointed Aide de Camp to Lord Aberdeen, Governor General of Canada. In June 1894, he and geologist J. B. Tyrrell traveled on a 500 mile exploration of northwestern Canada near Hudson Bay, returning in January 1895. Through the influence of Anna Roosevelt, Robert Munro Ferguson came to the United States, where he and Douglas Robinson, Roosevelt's brother-in-law, were co-trustees of the Astor Estate and property interests in New York City.

On August 11, 1898, Munro Ferguson was commissioned as Second Lieutenant in Company D of Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders. He served in the Battle of San Juan Hill and the siege of Santiago. Among his fellow Rough Riders were his friends John C. Greenway and David M. Goodrich. He was discharged on September 15, 1898.

Robert Munro Ferguson married Isabella Selmes (Greenway) on July 15, 1905 at the Cutcheon home on Long Island. They had two children; Martha (1906-1995) and Robert (1908-1984). In 1908, Munro Ferguson became ill with tuberculosis and the family moved from New York City to Saranac Lake, New York. In 1910, they moved to Cat Canon near Silver City, New Mexico, again for his health. In January 1914, they filed for national forest acreage near Tyrone, New Mexico, where they built a permanent "homestead" in the Burro Mountains and raised crops and cattle. Robert Munro Ferguson died on October 4, 1922 in Santa Barbara after a fourteen-year bout with tuberculosis.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The "John and Isabella Greenway" collection was the first of the "Greenway" collections to be brought into the Arizona Historical Society in the 1960s. Related collections were brought in and processed at various times, making it necessary for researchers to consult all related collections on a given topic. For example, correspondence from Eleanor Roosevelt to Isabella Greenway can be found in MS 311, but can also be found in MS 1017, the Ferguson Collection. Papers relating to the Rough Riders can be found in MS 311, MS 1017 and MS 1020. Papers relating to Gilpin and Greenway airlines are primarily in MS 1019, but can also be found in MS 311.

The bulk of the collection will be of interest to researchers concerned with both Arizona and national politics from the teens through the 1930s. Isabella Greenway's files and correspondence from her years as a United States Congresswoman comprise the largest segment of the collection. Her correspondence with constituents (which she answered untiringly), as well as files and correspondence on legislation form a large foundation on which to base research on politics during the depression. The legislative files range from one folder to several boxes, depending on the subject. The larger files include her work on the Townsend Act ("Old Age Pensions"), the Civilian Conservation Corps, Farm Loans, Federal Emergency Relief Administration, Reclamation, Soil Conservation and Veterans Benefits. The political series of Isabella Greenway's Record Group also includes correspondence and political work relating to her work with the Democratic Party, as well as all of the work on her 1934 campaign for Congress. Her political series includes correspondence with all prominent Arizona politicians from the 1930s including Henry Ashurst, Carl Hayden, Benjamin Moeur, and George W. P. Hunt. The files on "Places," primarily show the politics of establishing post offices and the postmaster position in various Arizona communities.

Isabella Greenway's personal papers and diaries include her incoming and sometimes her outgoing correspondence. This sub-group contains the most personally significant portion of the collection. In her own correspondence with friends and family, her personal and family papers not only give a clear perspective on Isabella Greenway's life and work, but also give a good indication of the concerns of a woman of the upper class in the United States during this time period. The family papers include papers not only relating to her, but to the Cutcheon, Dinsmore, Flandrau families. These papers also include personal property statements and financial documents.

The business career of Isabella Greenway is also documented in the collection though her work with the Arizona Hut, the Arizona Inn and her continuation of business activities left to her care after the death of her husband, John C. Greenway. Her handling of all the estate papers is included.

The John C. Greenway record group also contains work of national and Arizona politics. His correspondence with Theodore Roosevelt brings out the intentions of the Rough Riders and his continued correspondence with various Rough Riders throughout the rest of his life shows the large influence the Spanish American War had on Greenway personally, as well as the influence of the participants on Arizona politics. Greenway's political work with the Progressive Party is valuable for its look into state and national politics in the teens and early twenties. Also of particular interest is Greenway's work leading up to, and including World War I, when he was trying to raise a regiment to serve (prior to U. S. involvement).

Greenway's business activities will be of interest to scholars studying Arizona's development in the early 20th century. This sub-group contains his and Isabella's continued work on the Colorado River Compact from 1911 through 1934. For Arizona's business growth, Greenway worked on getting Arizona its share of Colorado River water and power through the Colorado River Compact and this correspondence will be of interest to the study of that development. John C. Greenway's mining work is heavily represented, with a great deal of correspondence asking for his advice. In addition, the largest section contains his business dealing with the Ahumada Lead Company in Mexico. There is very little on his work in Bisbee, through a careful reading of his business correspondence will demonstrate his handling of the "Bisbee Deportation" in 1917. His development of the mines in Ajo is also present.

The significance of the Robert Munro Ferguson record group is represented with the Theodore Roosevelt correspondence. Present in this group are letters from Roosevelt concerning the formation of the Rough Riders in 1898.

The record group of photographs contains mostly family photographs from the Isabella Greenway side of the collection. Many portraits of Isabella, John and her children are present. Many unidentified photographs from family members in Minnesota (probably the Flandraus) are present. Also included are photographs from around the state, including many photographs of the Arizona Inn (Tucson), taken in the 1930s. Photographs of the Rough Riders, as well as Theodore, Franklin, and Eleanor Roosevelt are also present.
