PC 021
Childress family
Photographs, ca. 1898-1930s

DESCRIPTION

Copy print photographs of the Childress family and their life in Globe, Arizona and working on the San Carlos Apache Indian Reservation chiefly in Arizona in the 1910s and 1930s. Photographs of Globe include a parade, street scene, buildings and a store interior. There are group photographs of the Arizona Rangers, men drafted from Globe into World War I, and Apaches on horseback with American flags. On the San Carlos Indian Reservation, photographs depict the trading post at Rice, Arizona, Apache men, women and homes (ca. 1938), and reservation buildings. There are views of a rustic sawmill in the White Mountains, a cowboy using his horse to pull a car across a stream, and a camping party of the "Don't Worry Club".

1 box, .25 linear ft.
