BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Al Sieber, scout, was born in Heidelberg, Germany in 1844. As a young boy, he immigrated to the United States. In 1862, he enlisted with the Union and fought at Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg. After the Civil War, he went to California, then Nevada and arrived in Arizona around 1868. In 1871-72, when Gen. Crook began organizing a force against Yavapai and Apache Indians, Sieber was signed on as a packer and soon became "Chief of Scouts." Sieber served in that capacity throughout the 1870s and early 1880s and had an important role in many missions. He was badly wounded in the leg during the Apache Kid outbreak of 1887. After being fired from his San Carlos Chief of Scouts position in 1890, he began prospecting until he was killed during construction on Roosevelt Dam in 1907.
