HISTORICAL NOTE: The Historic Designation Review Committee of the City of Yuma, now known as the Historic Design and Review Commission, is comprised of Yuma residents appointed by the City Council to review plans for new construction in historical districts, rehabilitation of existing structures, and exterior changes in historic properties that follow national standards and technical guidelines. Historic considerations are integral to the Planning and Development and Zoning Departments of Yuma City government.

The work accomplished in this eight-year period is significant for the sheer number of buildings and the land use adjacent to designated historic areas that were reviewed. See the Yuma Area Historical Resources Surveys Collection, Y-MS 34 that provides early background and direction for the much of the Commission's work.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE: Consists of agendas, meeting minutes, memos, staff reports of properties, applications from individual property owners and neighborhood residents seeking historic designation, supporting documents, educational materials, zoning and preservation guidelines, copies of newspaper articles, maps, sketches, and blueprints. Note that the bulk of staff reports were generated by Marty McCune, noted preservationist for the City of Tucson. Arranged in chronological order.
