HISTORICAL NOTE:

The Society for American Baseball Research (SABR) was formed at Cooperstown, New York in 1971 to bring together the scholarship of baseball historians, statisticians and researchers. The founding sixteen members outlined several objectives including: to foster the study of baseball as a social and athletic institution, to facilitate the dissemination of baseball research, and to establish an accurate historical account of baseball. The membership has grown over time to include broadcasters, sports writers, major and minor league officials, and numerous fans of the game. SABR publishes The Baseball Research Journal, its flagship publication and The National Pastime, the convention focused annual publication.
