BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

Isabella Selmes Munro Ferguson Greenway King (1886-1953)

Isabella Selmes Greenway, Arizona Congresswoman, was born on March 22, 1886 in Boone County, Kentucky. She was the only daughter of Tilden Russell Selmes (1852-1895) and Martha "Patty" Flandrau Selmes (1861-1923). Her father died in 1895 and for the next five years, Isabella and her mother lived at various times with her maternal grandfather in St. Paul, Minnesota and with her great-aunt Julia Dinsmore in Boone County, Kentucky.

In 1901, Isabella moved with her mother to New York City, where she attended Spence School and Miss Chapin's School. She was a bridesmaid at the wedding of her school friend Eleanor Roosevelt to Franklin Delano Roosevelt on March 17, 1905.

On July 15, 1905, Isabella married Robert Harry Munro Ferguson (1868-1922), a native of Scotland and a former Rough Rider with Theodore Roosevelt. They had two children: Martha Ferguson Breasted (b. 1906) and Robert Munro Ferguson (1908-1984). When her husband developed tuberculosis in 1908, Isabella moved the family for his health first to Saranac Lake, New York (1908-1910), then to Silver City, New Mexico (1910-1913), and finally, to a homestead in Tyrone, New Mexico (1914-1922). Later, they also resided in Santa Barbara, California (1919-1922), where the children attended school.

In 1918, Isabella was appointed chairperson of the New Mexico chapter of the Women's Land Army, an organization of women founded to replace the enlisted men on the farms and to raise the crops during World War I. She also served on the Grant County, New Mexico Board of Education.

In November 1922, her husband died, followed in July 1923 by her mother. On November 4, 1923, Isabella married General John Campbell Greenway, vice-president of the Calumet & Arizona Mining Company, in Santa Barbara. Their son, John Selmes Greenway, was born on October 11, 1924. In January 1925, they built a residence in Ajo, Arizona, and Greenway retired from C & A Mining Company in May of that year. He died of complications following gall bladder surgery in January 1926. In 1927, Isabella purchased the Quarter Circle Double X Ranch in Williams, Arizona. The ranch remained in the family until its sale in 1977.

Also in 1927, Isabella moved to Tucson and established the Arizona Hut to provide employment opportunities for war veterans. The Hut, which manufactured and sold furniture, was unsuccessful, due to the Depression. In 1930, with proceeds from the sale of her copper stock, Isabella built the Arizona Inn, furnishing it with the products made at the Hut.

Isabella Greenway's political career was launched in 1928 when she was elected Democratic National Committeewoman for Arizona. She was re-elected in 1932. In 1933, Arizona Congressman Lewis W. Douglas resigned to become Director of the Federal Budget, and Isabella won the election to fill his seat in Congress. She was re-elected in 1934, but chose not to seek another term in 1936.

On April 22, 1939, Isabella married Harry Orland King (1890-1976), president of the Institute of Applied Econometrics and deputy National Recovery Act administrator with whom she had worked in Congress to write the copper code. She divided her time among residences in New York City; Fairfield, Connecticut; and Tucson.

During the 1940's, Isabella was national chairwoman of the American Women's Voluntary Service, a board member of the American Arbitration Association, and an advisory board member of the Committee for Constitutional Government. She was also a board member of the Fay School in Southborough, Massachusetts, which her son attended. Although she was a personal friend of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, she strongly opposed efforts to re-elect him for a third term in 1944.

Isabella Greenway King inherited Dinsmore Farm in Boone County, Kentucky from her aunt Sally Flandrau Cutcheon in 1947. After a year-long series of heart attacks, Isabella Selmes Greenway King died on December 18, 1953 at her home in Tucson. She was buried at Dinsmore Farm.

John Campbell Greenway (1872-1926)

John Campbell Greenway, mining engineer and Spanish-American War Rough Rider, was born on July 6, 1872 in Huntsville, Alabama. The son of Gilbert Christian Greenway (1849-1912) and Alice White Greenway (d. 1912), he attended school in Arkansas and Virginia. He received a Ph.D. in engineering from Yale University in 1895, where he was a noted football athlete and president of his class.

He began his mining career in 1895 working for the Carnegie Steel Company in Duquesne, Pennsylvania. He enlisted in the United States Volunteer Cavalry (Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders) during the Spanish-American War. He was promoted from private to first lieutenant for his bravery in the Battle of San Juan Hill.

In 1899, he resumed his mining career as the Assistant Superintendent of Mines at Ishpeming, Michigan for the U.S. Steel Corporation. In 1905, he was named General Superintendent of the Oliver Iron Mining Company at the Mesabe Range in Minnesota. In July 1910, he moved to Bisbee, Arizona where he became General Manager of the Calumet & Arizona Copper Company, General Manager of the New Cornelia Copper Company in 1911, Vice-President and General Manager of the Cornelia & Gila Bend railway, and Vice-President of the Ahumada Lead Company.

Greenway was instrumental in the development of five mining communities: Coleraine (1906), Marble (1908), and Taconite (1905) in Minnesota; Ajo, Arizona (1911); and Los Lamentos, Chihuahua, Mexico (1922), where the Ahumada and Erupcion mining companies were located. He was also involved in the power dam project at Diamond Creek on the Colorado River in 1922.

In October 1917, Greenway was commissioned a major in the Corps of Engineers, 1st and 26th Divisions, and was assigned to France. Later, he became Lieutenant Colonel of the 101st Infantry, 26th Division. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and several French decorations for bravery. Greenway became a Brigadier General in the Army Reserves following World War I.

Politically, Greenway was a staunch supporter of Theodore Roosevelt. Greenway's name was placed in nomination for Vice-President at the Democratic National Convention in June 1924. He also served as regent of the University of Arizona from 1911-1912 and received an honorary doctor of laws degree there in 1916.

On May 27, 1925, Greenway retired as general manager of Calumet & Arizona. That fall, he suffered a gall bladder attack. On January 15, 1926, he underwent elective surgery in New York City, but died of a blood clot of January 19, 1926. He was buried in Ajo, Arizona. On May 24, 1930, a statue of General John Campbell Greenway was unveiled at Statuary Hall, Capitol Building, in Washington, D.C.

Arizona until its sale in 1977. When his mother died in 1953, he inherited Dinsmore Farm in joint ownership with his sister, Martha Ferguson Breasted, and his brother, Robert Munro Ferguson.

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Arizona Inn

The Arizona Inn, a prestigious Tucson resort hotel built by Isabella Greenway, was designed by noted architect M. H. Starkweather. Construction of the Inn, consisting of individual cottages grouped around a central garden, began in September 1930. It was furnished largely with products of the Arizona Hut, a manufacturing plant and sales outlet founded by Mrs. Greenway on 1927 to provide work for disabled World War veterans. The Inn opened on December 18, 1930.

In 1931, Mrs. Greenway oversaw completion of the adobe walls and landscaping and ordered the construction of five more guest houses, a new dining room and banquet hall, and a central heating plant. Over the years, she continued to remodel, redecorate, and expand the Inn's facilities in order to enhance its atmosphere of charm and privacy. In 1937, the swimming pool and tennis courts were constructed. More guest rooms were added during World War II.

The Inn operated only during winters until World War II, when it remained open summers to house military personnel undergoing training at the nearby University of Arizona and Davis-Monthan Air Force Base. The Inn resumed its winter schedule from 1945 to 1973, when a modern refrigerator system was installed to replace the old evaporative coolers. Air-conditioning enabled the Inn to operate year-round, beginning in 1974. To adapt to its changing business clientele in the 1970s, the Inn was remodeled to include a gift shop and large-group meeting facilities (1972).

The American Women's Voluntary Service

The American Women's Voluntary Service (A.W.V.S.) was organized in January 1940 and incorporated on April 23, 1941 by its president: Alice T. McLean of New York City. Its purpose was to mobilize, train, and place women to assist the work of such organizations as the American Red Cross, the American Legion, and the United Services Organization. During World War II, it focused primarily on providing trained personnel and aid to groups connected with the war effort, such as welfare agencies, recreational services, defense councils, medical groups, and other war or civilian organizations.

Isabella Greenway served as national chairwoman and Executive Committee member of A.W.V.S. from July 1941 to January 1943.
