HISTORICAL NOTE

The Parkview Hotel, located on the corner of Pennington and Meyer in downtown Tucson, was originally built as the Reid Opera House in 1886. In 1902, Reid gave up the theater business and remodeled the building. Rooms were built around the original structure and the stage was covered with bathing and utility rooms. It was named the Parkview Hotel because it overlooked Levins Park. In 1923, Mrs. Rose Zucca purchased the building and continued operating it as a hotel. It also housed business offices before the building was torn down in 1958.
