

RICHARD SCHAUS COLLECTION – FM MSS 6

Processed and Compiled by Dorothy M. Webb, 1983

Provenance: Donated to the Arizona Historical Society in 2012 by the Arizona Historical Foundation.

Richard George Schaus was born in Green Bay, Wisconsin, on January 11, 1910. He died in Phoenix, Arizona, April 14, 1981. His first introduction to the West was with a Glider training program in Deming, New Mexico. He became a Staff Sergeant in the Air Force, Burma Theater, World War II. A year's course in photography at Columbia University followed the war. Schaus then came to Phoenix and opened a photo shop with a man named Bob Allen.

Abbie Keith, Editor of the Arizona Cattlelog monthly magazine of the Arizona Cattle Growers Association, hired Schaus to take pictures for the magazine. In a short time, he was writing stories to go with the pictures and working full time for the Association. His earliest articles, during 1950 and 1951, were about living cowboys ("Cowboy Corner") and Quarter Horses, special features in each issue of the magazine. Soon, Schaus was photographing and writing about ranch people and ranches throughout the state of Arizona.

During the 1950's, he also had several articles published in Arizona Highways, the subjects being cattle and related topics. The back cover of each Arizona Cattlelog carried a Valley National Bank ad with a biography of an Arizona ranchman or woman. Roscoe Wilson wrote the biographies for many years. In 1957, Schaus took over that job.

In December 1962 Schaus became Editor of the Arizona Cattlelog and remained so until he retired in June, 1975. A new editor and a new name, The Outlook, came with the January 1977 issue. However, Schaus continued writing a Western Heritage story for each issue through September, 1980.

Schaus was a reserved gentleman, and never married. He lived simply, always searching for good historical books, facts about Spanish Land Grants, and stories of pioneer cattle people

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Richard Schaus Collection, 1950-1980 is the accumulation of research materials during Schaus' thirty years affiliation with the Arizona Cattle Growers Association. When Abbie Keith, Editor of the Cattle Growers Association publication, employed Schaus to write and photograph for the Arizona Cattlelog, it was the beginning of Schaus' collection of materials of great importance concerning Arizona's cattle people and the cattle industry.

The collection consists of correspondence, documents, photographs, reference notes, newspaper and magazine articles maps, microfilm, tapes, engravings, scrapbooks, and books. All relate to cattle people, the cattle industry in Arizona or to the history of the Southwest and Mexico. Additionally, there are old brand documents and historical letters of the Arizona Cattle Growers Association and 1871-1937 minutes of the Arizona Livestock Sanitary Board Meetings.

The photograph collection includes albums containing more prints of people, livestock shows, ranches and cattle. Of note, are the photographs of well known Arizona personalities Paul Fannin, Barry Goldwater, Carl Hayden, Ernest McFarland, Howard Pyle, Jack Williams, Carl Bimson and other people of prominence not connected with the cattle industry. The thousands of negatives make for a significant collection since the majority of the photographs were taken by Schaus. The additional negatives are from original prints belonging to ranching families.

NOTE: The oversized maps in this collection were transferred to the Noble Library Map Department for optimum storage, access, and preservation.
